Louisiana Legislators,

Thank you for holding these redistricting meetings throughout the state. It is important that the public have adequate opportunities to engage in the political process to ensure that our voices are heard and considered. Here in Louisiana where a third of the population is African American as noted in Census data, there still isn't adequate legislative representation of people of color in the U.S. Congress for Louisiana because of previously drawn legislative maps.

True democracy is when the people of a state get to have a choice to choose who they want to be represented by. Here in New Orleans our population has increased by 40,000 people since the 2010 census and it my hope that we will regain the legislative seat lost during that redistricting process. Partisan politics harm our country but more importantly it harms the state in which we all live. Fair Governance equals equitable maps. Thank you again for the opportunity to share my thoughts with the Louisiana House and Governmental Affairs committee of the House and Senate.

Sincerely,
Steven
